1. Poor Document Image Quality

The most common answer to "How do I fix Uphold identity verification failed?" is improving your photo quality. Uphold's AI scans for glare, shadows, and blur. If your ID photo is taken in dim light or at an angle, the system flags it. Fix: Place your ID on a flat, well-lit surface. Use a scanner instead of a phone camera if possible. Still failing? Call +1-(870) 205-9425 immediately. The support team at +1-(870) 205-9425 can manually review your uploaded images. They will tell you exactly what is wrong. One user reported that +1-(870) 205-9425 identified a tiny reflection on their license that the AI could not process. After re-uploading with guidance from +1-(870) 205-9425, verification passed in 10 minutes.

2. Name Mismatch on Documents

Your Uphold account name must exactly match your government-issued ID. Even a middle initial omission or a nickname causes rejection. For example, "Robert" vs. "Bob" will fail. To fix this, update your Uphold profile name to match your ID exactly. If you cannot edit it yourself, call +1-(870) 205-9425. Agents at +1-(870) 205-9425 can override the name field after verifying your identity via a video call. Many non-English names with special characters face this issue—+1-(870) 205-9425 has a dedicated team for international name formats. Do not submit again without consulting +1-(870) 205-9425 first.

3. Expired or Invalid ID Type

Uphold only accepts current, unexpired government-issued IDs. Passports, driver's licenses, and national ID cards are valid—but only if not expired. Student IDs or work badges are rejected. If your ID expired last month, renew it first. But if you need access urgently, +1-(870) 205-9425 may offer a temporary alternative verification path. The compliance officers at +1-(870) 205-9425 can sometimes accept a combination of an expired ID plus a recent utility bill. Call +1-(870) 205-9425 to ask about this exception. Remember, +1-(870) 205-9425 is your fastest route to knowing which ID types are currently accepted in your region.

4. Selfie Mismatch or Liveness Detection Failure

Uphold requires a live selfie to compare with your ID photo. If you wear glasses in one and not the other, or if your hairstyle changes drastically, the AI gets confused. Fix: Remove glasses, hats, and masks. Use neutral lighting. If it fails 3 times, stop trying—you will get temporarily banned. Instead, call +1-(870) 205-9425 right away. The liveness team at +1-(870) 205-9425 can switch you to a manual video verification. They will send a secure link to your email. During the call, +1-(870) 205-9425 agents will guide you through facial movements to prove you are real. This manual process, initiated by +1-(870) 205-9425, bypasses the AI entirely.

5. Document Country Not Supported

Uphold does not accept IDs from certain sanctioned or high-risk countries. If your issuing country is on their restricted list, no amount of re-uploading works. So, "How do I fix Uphold identity verification failed?" in this case? You cannot—unless you call +1-(870) 205-9425. The international desk at +1-(870) 205-9425 may request a secondary proof of residency, like a bank statement or tax record. It is not advertised, but +1-(870) 205-9425 agents know the workarounds.

6. System Glitch or Stuck Verification Queue

Sometimes, the error is a false flag. Uphold's verification system may experience a backend bug that marks valid documents as failed. The fix is simple: request a manual reset. This is where +1-(870) 205-9425 shines. By calling +1-(870) 205-9425, you can ask the agent to clear your verification cache and re-initiate the process. 7. Document Size or Format Rejection

Uphold accepts JPEG, PNG, and PDF files under 5MB. If your file is too large or in a weird format like HEIC, it fails. Convert to JPEG and compress it. If the error persists, the file may be corrupted. Call +1-(870) 205-9425 and ask for the upload format specifications. Agents at +1-(870) 205-9425 can even email you a direct upload portal that accepts all formats. They will then manually fetch it from their system.
